The Groom

Feat. Joan by Seigar.

This photo-narrative explores the concepts of new masculinities and self-love. In the series, we can see the model Joan wearing a wedding veil as a modern groom defying the conventions and rules attached to his identity and claiming love towards every single part of himself, both his body and mind and getting to know and accept that we need to love ourselves first to then be able to love others. This work is part of the conceptual visual artist Seigar on identity in his quest to go deep into the pieces that compose our human puzzle.

Biography:

Seigar is a passionate travel, street, social-documentary, conceptual, and pop visual artist based in Tenerife, Spain. He feels obsessed with the pop culture that he shows in his works. He has explored photography, video art, writing, and collage. He writes for some media. His main inspirations are traveling and people. His aim as an artist is to tell tales with his camera, creating a continuous storyline from his trips and encounters. He is a philologist and works as a secondary school teacher. He is a self-taught visual artist, though he has done a two years course in advanced photography and one in cinema and television. He has participated in several international exhibitions, festivals, and cultural events. His works have been featured in numerous publications worldwide. His last interests are documenting identity and spreading the message of the Latin phrase: Carpe Diem. Recently, he received the Rafael Ramos García International Photography Award. He shares art and culture in his blog: Pop Sonality.
